MIDNIGHT INK

For Immediate Release

Award-Winning Yoga Studio Founder Pens a Debut Mystery with Delightful Twists Corpse pose turns deadly in book one of the Downward Dog Mystery series from Tracy Weber

SEATTLE, WASH.—Tracy Weber, founder of Seattle Magazine's "Best Therapeutic Yoga Studio," mixes mantras and mystery in Murder Strikes a Pose, to be released from Midnight Ink in January 2014.

Drawing from her own yoga background, Weber introduces Kate Davidson, a feisty Seattle yoga instructor who's more interested in savasana than solving crimes.... until she stumbles over a body in the studio's parking lot. The police dismiss the murder as drug-related street crime, but Kate knows that George—a homeless alcoholic she had befriended—was no drug dealer.

Kate stretches herself and takes on two new challenges. First, solve George's murder. Second, find someone—anyone—willing to adopt his intimidating, horse-sized German Shepherd, Bella, before Animal Control sends her to the big dog park in the sky. But with Bella's time almost up and the murderer hot on her trail, Kate will have to work fast.

Advance praise for Murder Strikes a Pose:

"Kate Davidson's pluck, humor, and determination make her a welcome addition to the ranks of amateur sleuths. Reading MURDER STRIKES A POSE made me want to study yoga."
